

So you literally, sleep and eat with the wolves?

Contributed by 6eDesign
Monday, 26 February 2007
Last Updated Friday, 18 May 2007

The lunch that I have with them is slightly cooked. The wolf pack is determined by the food that it eats. Dominant animals such as Alphas are largely eating food such as brain, heart, liver, kidneys and fresh meat. Each social order is determined by the food that they eat. So in order for me to maintain my position I have to eat the food source that I'm allowed to eat. In this case my colleagues would flash cook the food to a very rare standard and then placed in a bag inside the carcass where it would normally be found. When the carcass is brought in both myself and the wolves have to defend what's ours, the only difference is that mine is placed in a nice bag inside the carcass rather than the carcass itself. Water is available from a bag in the woods. Drinking water is fine.